Residents in the neighborhood of the School street end of Railroad street are complaining of the habit some people have of dumping refuse on that street, making an unsightly and an unhealthy spot of it. This should be stopped and all such waste material disposed of at the regular dump on the "Old Railroad" at the lower end of High street.

Sunday was the hottest day of the year. Although the mercury has gone higher than 97 degrees, the humidity has not been as great. It was an uncomfortable day for the masses, and those persons who stayed at home and kept quiet without worrying over their discomfort, were probably better off than those who wandered around looking for a cool place. The thousands who went to the beaches and spent many hours in the water probably kept cool though.

Mabel F. Noyes Tell of a Trip to the Paris Exhibition.

"Good Americans, when they die, go to Paris," runs the old saying, but this year the "good Americans" while still very much alive, are coming to this "wicked city," by the thousands. Yesterday a visitor to the fair said there were "more New Yorkers there than Parisians," and possibly he was right, for there were plenty of people from "the states," and more especially from our big eastern city.

In comparison with the Chicago exhibition, this fair is somewhat disappointing. It is considerably smaller, and so inconveniently arranged that, if you are in one part of the grounds and wish to go to another section, seemingly near by, you have to cross two or three long bridges with inclined stairways and double on your track to reach your destination.

Loud and deep were the murmurs, from all sides, when the Chicago fair opened because several exhibits and projects planned were incomplete, but in a short time in fact before the crowds began to arrive, everything was in working order. But the Parisians had planned and well advertised several features of their exhibition that now will never be, for they were not finished when the opening day came, and never having learned to conjugate the American verb "to hustle," the workmen calmly left things just where they were in their incomplete condition. Therefore, one side of the new Alexander III Bridge has its beautiful bronze statues in position while the group for the other side lies in the sand, nearby, where it chanced to be set down.

The marvelous telescope which was to seem to bring the moon within forty miles would have been quite an attraction to many people, but if you pay your admission fee to the building you will find that the instrument has not been set up, so nothing can be seen through it, but you can imagine how delightful it probably would have been to see the celestial bodies brought so near! These are only two instances of many incomplete attractions.

We bought all our tickets of the vendors who swarm within a radius of two miles around the grounds, and the highest price paid was 45 centimes and the lowest 30 centimes, although the official price was 50 centimes or about 20 cents. I see now, however, that the official price has been reduced to 50 centimes.

The educational exhibit of the United States in the building is made up chiefly of photographs of different grammar and high school buildings, or of sewing, gymnastic, sloyd or drawing classes at work. There is some pupils' work consisting of drawings, vertical writings, and the like, from the different grades, shut up in cupboards similar to those used by the Chicago schools at their 1893 fair. One interesting page or shelf was from a Haverhill school, and consisted of finely executed drawings of the interior of the poet Whitier's farmhouse kitchen, and objects of interest to be seen therein.

But perhaps foreigners would get the best idea of our school work from the exhibition of moving pictures aided by the phonograph. This was given in a room upstairs in the Social Economy building. This consisted of photographs taken in Mr. Edison's school district, New York city. The first represented a roomful of pupils marching in boys on one side, girls on the other, and filing to their seats. Then a boy with a large flag walked to the front of the room, and the pupils went through the "Salute to the Stars and Stripes," the words of which the phonograph reproduced, and this was followed by the singing of "America." Perhaps there was not tumultuous applause from the audience! You would have thought from the noise that the room was filled only with Americans. Next came a view of the diemistral of the same school, and the pupils marched out very erect and "stately, to the music of the piano which the phonograph also reproduced. After this a kindergarten room was shown, with a group of children at their regular blackboard, and a systematic exercise of a roomful of larger pupils; a boys' class marching in to their sloyd work, and sawing or grinding away with a will; and lastly, a boys' yard at recess, with Young America playing leap frog in the foreground, and marbles and almost everything else in other parts of the yard.

This series was followed by stereopticon views of different New York school buildings, but as the "Economy" building, true to its name, shut off the electric light from the operator at this stage, we saw no more.

In the next section to the school exhibit, we came across three large books of photographs to illustrate the different kinds of American trolley cars, turnouts, bridges, etc. There were views on the electric line through Billerica, Lakeview and vicinity, and photographs of the Lawrence falls bridge, of a car turning the corner from Essex street onto Newbury street; a vestibuled car photographed in Haverhill, several views of the Pines, a car on the Bradley turnout and one at the Varnum turnout, and two or three good views of Glen Forest.

Down stairs in this same building is the exhibit of the great dressmaker, Worth. Every time we passed it the audience consisted of 85 men and boys to five women. One part of it represented a lady trying on a very beautiful court presentation costume, with the maid arranging the train and several ladies, in elegant visiting toilettes looking on. Behind her sits a lady receiving callers, and showing a reception and several calling gowns. Then there are wonderful brocade and fur-trimmed mantes, opera cloaks, etc., and some plain tailor-made gowns, one of the latter being labelled as having been sold 14 times since the exhibition opened. Redford had a very elaborate exhibit, nearby, and there were some of the most beautiful hand-painted sashes and ribbons I have ever seen.

but there were not as many diamonds. I think, as in the Chicago exhibit—possibly in deference of the Paris "paste"—the turquoise predominates here, as indeed, it seems to everywhere this side of the ocean.

The Eiffel tower is a prominent feature of the fair, and can be seen for a long distance off. For two francs you can go to the top of it, by a series of elevators (unless you are foolish enough to walk up), and, nearly 1000 feet from the ground, look off at our old friend—the Ferris wheel—which seems very far below us from this point of view, and get a birdseye view of the fair, and by the aid of small telescopes, procured on the upper platform, look off at the surrounding country, and pick out the various forts and villages, that are marked out on the ceiling overhead, to aid in locating them.

There is no beautiful Court of Honor, and the fountains seem very old and inferior compared with the fountains, but the picture gallery is superior to the 1893 exhibit, and well it may be, as several of the noted paintings have temporarily been taken from the Louvre and placed here. There are also very fine groups of statuary.

The platform, or moving sidewalk—is a great and wonderful amusement to many people, and it is several times a day. You pay ten cents and then step on the outside platform which moves slowly, and from that board, the inside platform, which moves twice as fast, or nearly five miles an hour and makes a complete circuit of the grounds in 15 minutes.

Then there is the Myriorama, arranged like a panorama and visitors imagine themselves on board an ocean steamer, while the wonderful sights pass before their eyes. I am told that it is such a realistic journey that some imaginative people have experienced the delights of "mal de mer" while viewing the Luminous Palace is made of glass with a great deal of stained glass work, and at night, when brilliantly lighted, is very beautiful.

In the Midway, Palsance an amusing feature is the "Topsy-Turvy House," which, as its name indicates, is built upside down, with the chimneys and tower on the ground. The clock is upside down, and so is all the furniture, while the mirrors are so arranged that those seem to be walking on the ceiling.

The United States Pavilion is modelled after the Washington capitol, and has an impressive statue of the immortal George on horseback, at the entrance. The building has a cozy lounge room, with plenty of comfortable newspapers, visitors' register, etc.

The pavilion of Great Britain is a very plain building, guarded at each door by a London policeman. It was closed several days on account of the death of the Duke of Edinburgh, and it is very careful about opening it on other occasions, because, I suppose, it contains so many magnificent tapestries, old English china, inlaid tables and paintings by Gainsborough, Reynolds, Turner and some of the other masters, that are loaned for the occasion. The other pavilions, except the German one, which is finely decorated, are not especially attractive.

But if the fair does not interest you, there are so many beautiful sights to be seen in other parts of the city, that you can well employ every moment of your sojourn, and not even regret that you crossed the Channel to see "Gay Paree!"

MABEL F. NOYES.

HOW TO DARKEN THE DAWN.

Here is a discovery: A thin, black India silk handkerchief tied over the eyes is the best remedy for the annoyance of the early morning glare to which in their bedrooms most persons are now subjected.

This is an army trick, commonly practised on the plains and in camp by those desiring to sleep after a strenuous day, and divulged to the effectual easterner. Some officers scorn this expedient, others like it and the army woman resorts to it always. It often happens, however, that she does not possess a black silk handkerchief, in which case she may use a black stocking over her eyes instead. And frequently her husband is not above begging the other stocking. This solves the problem of shutting out the light in a most simple and effectual way.

But the army woman says there is no reason why every woman living in proximity to shops should not have a black India silk handkerchief. Blinds and awnings, in addition to window shades, are all very well to do, but if they are on the house, but frequently they are not, more particularly in the country, where they are most needed. Then, even in the event of having these luxuries in hot weather many persons object to using them because of the amount of air these things shut out from a room.

Every one knows in the migration from town to country how annoying the early morning light is to the city bred, particularly the women who do not have to rise at the first dawn of day. In order to catch a train to business. Those people who are summering in hotels and boarding houses commonly occupy rooms with whitewashed or very light papered ceilings, and this reflects the strong light, which by 4 o'clock these summer mornings begins to turn the light sleeper into a wakeful, restless creature, who, if he, or, she have blinds, gets up and closes them, but is forced for lack of air, to at least leave the shutters open, thereby letting much light enter. And frequently there is so little air, that to bar out any of it, even by drawn blinds with open shutters, is out of the question.—New York Press.

A Minister's Wife's Duty.

"The duty of a minister's wife, it might properly be considered, is to keep herself informed concerning the work of the mission boards of her denomination," writes "A Minister's Wife," in the September Ladies' Home Journal.

"The wife of a minister may be a valuable and yet not an overburdened member of the missionary societies if she quietly holds her societies in league with denominational work. No one else can do this so well, because the minister will supply the needed information. On occasions where it is necessary for the church to be represented in the women's councils it is fitting that the minister's wife should go, if she feels inclined. If she is timid and shrinking, such publicity is torture, and there is no reason why she should force herself to submit to it. She can, in the society, suggest, and, if need be, insist upon delegates to do this work. If she has a wise head and a kind heart she will not do more than is right, and she will do whatever is necessary; but the parish must realize that there are many demands socially and that her life is to be planned out in accordance with her own ideas of right. She needs her strength, her brightness, her reposeful home. She should give to the church only such service as every other Christian woman ought to give, and no more, for we are saying today, with a new and sensible emphasis: 'The church engaged my husband—not me!'"

ODD WAYS OF LIVING.

There can be no better illustration of the truth of the moss-grown expression that "one-half" of the world does not know how the other half lives," than is found in the discoveries made by a number of census agents. Occupations that were never known to exist have been unearthed by these questioners sent to many of the remote parts of the world, and unique livelihoods food for much thought.

One of the census-takers dropped into East 45th street and found on a door that confronted him at the third landing the name "Prof. Abunson." The professor had long whiskers and considerable volubility, and said in reply to the query as to his occupation that he was a professional spanker. He showed a business card and an advertisement in German and English which read: "Harsh and wayward boys disciplined at parents' residences."

"I always see the culprit before I decide upon the amount of punishment," said the professor. "Sometimes they see me first and then lose my job." "As a rule I inflict the punishment in a room in which there is a clock. I always insist that the parents tell me how long I am to spank the refractory boy. Girls? Oh, no; I never spank girls."

One of the census takers discovered close to Fort Greene park, in Brooklyn a man named Brenner with a sign reading: "Waterbug Killer to the United States Navy."

An odder queer occupation discovered is conducted by a man who "calls people." His chief customers are those who have to get up at unusually early hours, such as bartenders, policemen, motormen and the like. "It's not very pleasant, though," he said, "and sometimes it's dangerous. I've been arrested several times for going into hallways before daylight and once I got a black eye from a man, who threw an arm clock at me when I called him."

The woman whose business it is to collect corks, and who is said to make $10 a day, is another queer one on the long list of oddities. She gathers all the whiskey, champagne and mineral water corks through a number of emporiums and sells them to the firms who originally cut them.

Close to Bellevue hospital is a woman who sells bottles. Big-hearted "Tom" Brennan gave her the idea, and also a stand close to the dispensary, and she now employs every moment of her time in the business outside the gloomy walls for 25 years. She has four barrels of bottles in the shed-like structure, which is about half the size of an ordinary newspaper booth. The poor who go to the dispensary for medicine usually fail to take bottles along. The dispensary does not furnish bottles nor are they sold inside its gates. The "bottle woman," as she is called, sells for one or two cents each, glass bottles of all sizes, ranging from the tiny bottles used for eye medicine to large bottles for horsetail liniment.—New York Mail and Express.

How many while enjoying the cooling beverages so pleasant and common these warm days, think of where and how this ice, which tinkles so merrily or cools so effectually the drink before it is drawn, comes, says the Salem News. If they give it a thought they say, "Why from the ice house, of course."

This certainly is true, but just why and how ice can be kept through the year without melting and the ice houses usually fail to take bottles along. The dispensary does not furnish bottles nor are they sold inside its gates. The "bottle woman," as she is called, sells for one or two cents each, glass bottles of all sizes, ranging from the tiny bottles used for eye medicine to large bottles for horsetail liniment.—New York Mail and Express.

As soon as the ice is harvested it is stored in the ice houses. The building, if properly built, has a wooden floor resting upon a bed of ice some six inches deep. The walls of the house are double and between the outer and inner shell tan is packed clear to the eaves.

These walls slope toward one another, so that at the base the space is filled with tan about 18 inches wide, while at the top it tapers to about a foot.

This tan makes it tight, excluding the air and keeping as it were, the ice warm.

The blocks of ice as they come from the lake are 44 inches square. They begin, naturally, to load the house from the bottom, one cake being piled upon another. Each cake is put in with mechanical accuracy, with an air space around the sides of each cake of three inches.

This is done so that the cakes will not freeze together on the sides, which would necessitate cutting the cakes apart again. After seven or eight tiers have been laid, a "trap door" is built in the middle of the tier so that the contents of the cake come over the three inch air spaces left around the tiers, thus binding them together, just the same as in brick laying the joints are broken every course. It also keeps the hay and dirt from sitting down between the cakes and soiling them.

Then 10 more courses follow, and another lay tier, and so on until the house is filled. When this has been accomplished the whole is covered with 18 inches of hay, and the house is closed until summer. When the season opens and the work of removing the ice commences, the hay is removed, and with sharp striking under bars, the cakes are separated from one another.

As the ice rests on the cake below, they naturally freeze together, but a slight prying with this bar pulls them apart without breaking the cake. Should, however, the ice be frozen together along the sides, by reason of much ice accumulating, then they have to be separated with a chisel bar, or if badly frozen, must be cut apart with a hand groove, a seven-toothed cutter, much like a saw.

It is to avoid this that the three inch air spaces are left between the cakes on the sides, for in prying them up, the least little congealing on the sides will break a cake badly, making it unmarketable. After being separated, these 44-inch cakes are cut each into 22-inch cakes with a hand groove before being sent down the incline into the wagons.

Telephone Exchange Now Occupies Palatial Quarters.

The entire lot of telephone circuits of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company in this city were cut over last Saturday night and at 10 a.m., after waiting a long time for a change of "Central," the hopes of the company and its local employees have been realized, for the operators, and in fact all the local exchange have been transferred from the small, crowded quarters to a large and commodious building.

The annex of the late A. W. Stearns & Co.'s dry goods store which was recently purchased by the company, is the building in which hereafter, the local offices and exchange of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co., will be maintained. The structure was an ideal one in which to install a perfectly up to date system, and it is doubtful if there are many other "Centrals" in the state which can compare with the new one in this city. It was the intention of Superintendent Pond of the local exchange to have the circuits cut over a week ago Saturday, but owing to the non-arrival of certain necessary material he was unable to carry out his plans. Last Saturday, however, everything was ready for the change and the cut over, which was made about 9 o'clock in the evening, required but a few minutes.

Circulars had previously been sent to all the subscribers, instructing them not to ring the bell, in calling general, after nine o'clock Saturday evening, August 25th, but merely to take the receiver from the hook and proceed to call. This is one of the many advantages of the new system, and another which is gained by the improved method, is that in vogue and one which will be welcomed by all subscribers, is that hereafter it will not be necessary for the operator to break into a conversation with the querist "Waiting?" when she wishes to know if the parties talking are finished.

Everything for the convenience of the company's employees and everything which will give to the people of Lawrence the best telephone service is to be found in the new exchange. To the electrician and to him everything is simplicity, so carefully and systematically has all been arranged by the skilled hands of the workmen.

A trip through the building, however, is a rare treat for anyone and not only is the exchange interesting but some parts are even astonishing. So carefully and systematically has all been arranged by the skilled hands of the workmen.

In the basement of the structure is the power plant which consists of a 220 volt dynamo, run by current from the power company. Connected with this is a dynamo of an output of 20 amperes at 22 volts, which provides the necessary power for operating the city's system of telephones. A duplicate of the dynamo is also in the building, and at a moment's notice can be switched in. This is run by a gas engine instead of a motor and the entire plant in the basement runs without a tremor. The storage battery, which is charged by the motor, and which is a uniform current, are found here and they are used on the talking circuit and also for ringing, the latter through the medium of a small motor and equipment. One other thing of interest in this floor is the switch board, which is a work of great ingenuity and which is excellent in design. This sets upon the wall and is used for handling the currents.

The ground floor is devoted to the business office and public telephone exchange. Superintendent Pond has his office here and there are also the desks of the book keepers, Clara Gilbert and Addie Allerton; and that of the public telephone clerk, Miss Martha Hackett. On the second floor is the distributing frame, the fuse and the main frame to keep one guessing for the rest of his natural days. This floor is verily the delight of the electrician for the hundreds of wires, the relays, lightning rods, and many other things which are objects of interest for him. About 120 objects come in on this floor, and to guard against lightning, a neat arrangement is here installed. If the wire is struck the current merely enters the building and jumping a mica slip is shunted off to the ground without having done any harm. Other currents of a less voltage than that of lightning are cared for by a German silver heating coil which is melted by the current. The main frame here takes about 1000 wires and another many devices on this floor is one by which a subscriber's number can be retained.

The top floor is the sanctum of "the queen of the telephone girls," and her queen assistants. Here is the new switchboard, a most costly fixture and a wonderful achievement of electrical science, and on this floor are also retiring and lounging rooms for the operators.

The switch boards, local and toll are probably the most interesting arrangement in the exchange and they will be cared for as follows:

Local operators, Misses Alice Brown, Ella Dixon, Mary Booker, Jennie Walker, Louise Cunningham, Lillian Long, and Edith Marland.

Toll operators—Misses Rose Fellows, Elizabeth Houston, Helen Kelliwell, Edith Gray, and Ruth Gaining. The local board is capable of accommodating fourteen operators, but for the present only nine will be employed on it and while the toll board will be cared for by five operators, it has room for one more.

The local board is an elaborate structure, and there is room for 4900 lines upon it. The toll board is of course smaller and the lines from it are "fused out" directly behind it instead of being carried down stairs as in the case of the other lines.

In charge of this room is the monitor or chief operator, whose desk is in the north end of the building between the toll board on her right and the local board on her left. This capacity will be filled by Emmett F. Sidley.

Briefly, the work of the operator and the process of operating the new board is as follows: Subscriber takes receiver off the hook and operator "plugs" the desired number. The operator "plugs" the desired number. The operator "plugs" the desired number. The operator "plugs" the desired number.

When both parties are finished and both receivers have been replaced on the hooks, both lamps light but as long as the lights remain out, the operator knows that the line is busy, and is unnecessary for her to break in to ask if the subscriber is "waiting?" To ask only one of the supervisory lamps light, however, the operator knows that the other party desires to connect with the subscriber and she is more complicated, but is on the same plan as that for the local system.

The night operators will be Hubert J. Kand and J. Frank Barry, and their duties although the same as those of the day operators, become lighter as the hours grow later.

In each subscriber's house, a new equipment is to be installed, which is very neat and compact. The set is a black walnut and has no battery box, but magnet apparatus for calling, but merely presents a movable arm transmitter, the alarm bells, a hand desk for writing, and a receiver. The receiver is a much improved one, having two magnets inside and consequently very much more sensitive.

For the past two months at least 12 electricians have been busily at work in the new building and the outlay represents nearly $80,000. All the new arrangements combined gives each subscriber a service which is at least half as effective as the old one, and although things may run a little less smoothly at first and the subscriber is bothered by a little delay, he must not lose his patience, for the newness to the operator will soon wear off and she will be able to manipulate the new board to much better advantage than the old one. Her position is no insecure, in fact she is kept probably as busy, if not busier than any employee in the city.

And then the subscriber wonders why, if she loses her patience in the least degree, after he has almost turned the handle completely off the telephone, during the busiest moments. But there will be no more opportunity to get satisfaction out of the handle and the subscriber will have to resort to some other means of giving vent to his angry passions.

Very shortly it will be announced what form the opening will be, but for the first week or so there will be no time to think of that for will take that length of time to get things into good running order. When the new exchange is thrown open for inspection, however, everyone should endeavor to avail himself of the opportunity of making a trip through this busy workshop.

New York city consumes 5,200,000 tons of ice a year, of which 4,500,000 tons is natural ice.

Judge Campbell of the Rockland, Me., municipal court is nothing if not original. Recently when an old offender who had repeatedly been sentenced to jail for drunkenness, appeared before him, he suspended sentence with the understanding that the prisoner should not leave his own street within the prescribed time. For 60 days the man remained about his home, and Judge Campbell felt amply repaid when the offender's wife came and thanked him with tears of gratitude in her eyes.

HAD AN OBJECT.

"After I had watched a colored man fishing in a South Carolina brickyard pond for forty minutes without pulling up his hook," said the traveler, "I asked him if he thought there was any fish there to be caught." "No, sir," he replied. "But you seem to be fishing?" "Yes, sir." "But perhaps you are not fishing for fish?" "No, sir."

"I waited ten minutes for him to explain, but as he did not, I finally asked him what particular object he had in view." "De oblect," he repeated without taking his eyes off the pond and moving the pole—"de oblect of my fishin' fur fish whar dere ha'n't any is to let de ole woman see dat I ha'n't got no time to pick up de hoe and work in de truck patch."—Exchange.

ON THE NEAREST SAND BANK.

The summer poet enters, airy.
"I have here," he prattles, "a delicious bit entitled 'Gladys and Her Garden Hose.'"

The editor springs to his feet with a savage snarl.
"It is quite out of the ordinary," the poet hastens to add. "It is absolutely devoid of double entendre. Only one kind of hose is meant, throughout, namely, 1½-inch, three-ply rubber hose."

The editor wrings the poet's hand, not his neck. His emotions will not permit him to speak. Tears fill his eyes until he is scarcely able to write the check for one hundred dollars ($100).—(Detroit Journal).

A WONDERFUL CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

A prominent Virginia editor had almost given up, but was brought back to perfect health by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Read his editorial from the Times, Hillsdale, Va.:

"I suffered with diarrhoea for a long time and thought I was past being cured. I had spent much time and money and suffered so much misery that I had almost decided to give up all hopes of recovery and await the result, but noticing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and also some testimonials stating how some wonderful cures had been wrought by this remedy, I decided to try it. After taking a few doses I was entirely well of that trouble, and I wish to say further to my readers and fellow-sufferers that I am a hale and hearty man today, and feel as well as I ever did in my life.—O. ## The President's Workshop.

"The whole east end of the White House on the second floor is given up to public purposes—the offices of the President, his secretaries and the executive clerks, the Cabinet room and the 'Telegraph Room,' writes Rene Boche, in the September Ladies' Home Journal. For convenience the room last named adjoins President McKinley's own office, and the electric apparatus which it contains places him in communication by telegraph with all parts of the world, and by telephone with all points reached by the long distance system. A special kind of telephone which has no 'central,' enables him to converse privately with the heads of the Departments. The Cabinet Room is about one-third as big as it should be, and the library next to it contains an inferior collection of books, consisting mainly of out-of-date editions of historical and classical works. A glass door across the main corridor, which runs lengthwise through the White House, shuts off the offices described from the sleeping quarters of the family."

"Seeing is Believing."

When you see people cured by a remedy, you must believe in its power. Look around you. Friends, relatives, neighbors all say that Hood's Sarsaparilla, America's Greatest Medicine, cleansed the blood of their dear ones and they rise en masse to sing its praises. There's nothing like it in the world to purify the blood.

CRICKET

Andover Beats Merrimacks—Lawrence Downs the Leaders in the League.

Andover won a very easy victory over the Merrimacks in a league game on the latter's grounds at Burnham's Park last Saturday afternoon. Andover and Merrimack are having a hot fight for last place and Andover's victory sent them up one place. Andover's team was not at its strongest, Boyle, Rhodes and Angus being absent, while the Merrimacks were without Gordon and Morrell. Merrimack batted first but made a very poor start, three being out for 1 run. Harry Moseley and Garrett improved matters some, the last wicket falling for 58 runs. The feature of the inning however was the batting of Moseley, who, going in first, carried his bat for 20 runs. The previous week he played through the game against the Mohairs for 67, so that he has scored almost 100 runs (not out). Haddon and H. Saunders were Andover's first representatives and soon got down to business, both hitting out well. Haddon was out at 35 with 14 to his credit. J. Kydd and Harry brought the score to 63 before the former was out, and at all of time Andover had scored 71 for 7 wickets, winning by 18 runs and 3 wickets. Harry Saunders played a fine inning for 38 runs, which together with his 43 against Mohair brings him well up in the race for the batting cup. The score:

COUNTY NOTES.

Mayor Shepard of Lynn may be a candidate for re-election this fall.

Fifteen of the employees of J. O. Ellison & Co., of Haverhill, are out on a strike for an increase.

Forty parcels of land at Haverhill, upon which taxes were unpaid, were sold at auction yesterday.

A pedler robbed Mrs. Philbrick of Haverhill of $3.50, after an exciting encounter with her at her home yesterday.

John Clancy was arrested a Newburyport Saturday for breaking and entering the West Newbury postoffice. He was turned over to U. S. Officers.

A dump cart has been twice placed on the rails of the Rockport division Lynn & Boston road, evidently with the intention of causing a wreck.

Irene Cronin, daughter of John L. Cronin, was burned to death at her home in Lynn, Sunday evening. Gasoline ignited while the stove was being filled, catching the clothing of the child.

Frank Brown, colored, of Haverhill, was held in $500 for the superior court at Haverhill Saturday, probable cause being found in the case charging him with forging a minister's name to a marriage certificate.

Daniel Kelleher of Newburyport got into a drunken row on Friday night and was cut, so he claimed, by a man named Page. Page denied the statement, and as no evidence could be secured, the case was dropped.

For the third time the gate to the new opera house in Gloucester has been saved down. Everything went this time, the man making a clean sweep. As the wagon loaded with furniture went through the opening thus made, a big crowd which had collected, rent the air with cheers.

OLDEST FREE MASON DEAD

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 25.—William Hogg died in West Newbury tonight, aged 91 years. He probably was the oldest Free Mason in this vicinity, having been in the order in Scotland in 1810. He came to this country fifty years ago and has since lived on his farm in West Newbury.

GRAND OFFICERS ENTERTAINED.

LYNN, Aug. 25.—Lynn lodge of Elks held a meeting in Elks' hall, Central square, this afternoon, which will prove a memorable one to those members who had the courage to stand the terrible heat and sit in a lodge room for a short time.

The lodge at this session entertained the entire board of grand officers of the order who are in Lynn at the invitation of John D. O'Shea, a member of the grand board of trustees and also the secretary of Lynn lodge.

FATAL ELECTRIC CAR ACCIDENT.

LYNN, Aug. 25.—A frightful electric car accident took place at the corner of Elm and Walnut street, the dividing line between this city and Saugus, at 11:30 last night. Joseph Bresnahan, 32, who lived at 52 Brookvale street, West Lynn, was the victim.

Bresnahan's life was practically crushed out and it was impossible to get the body from under the wheels of the car for more than two hours after the accident.

The All Absorbing Topic.

The street railway problem grows interesting. The despised Reading road is already a warm favorite with a large riding public, and a big feeder to the L. L. & H. system.

Out of its present successes have come desires which are bound to become demands if they continue to be felt. The public will not long submit to the inconvenience of being left in the highway, a mile from the centre of the town. It may not be clear, as yet, how this is to be remedied, but public sentiment is a powerful lever, and it is getting under way very rapidly, in connection with this matter.

We called attention in this column last week, to the belief expressed by a local citizen that the selectmen have the power to grant a location to the Reading road, over the same route as that now followed down Main street, by the L. L. & H. A good many people question this, but there are as many more who believe that some positive action by the selectmen would settle the difficulty very quickly.

At last the L. L. & H. are awakening to the wisdom of paying a little attention to Andover. It has been a long story, told over and over, that "anything is good enough for Andover." "If there's an old car, put it on the Andover line; if rails are bumpy fix the other lines first, they'll take anything over there."

But when they cut their line and stopped their car a couple of hundred feet away from the Reading car terminus the public protested vigorously. And their protest had good effect, for as the result of a conference between Selectman Stark and Manager Woodman and Supt. Nowell of the L. L. & H., on Monday afternoon, work has already been started to clear the track and carry on the trolley wire to the very end of the L. L. & H. grant.

Now if the L. L. & H. people will give to the Andover line more and better cars, a new, heavy, smooth running rail, and fifteen minute time all day, the Andover public will begin to come into their own.

The North Andover grant to the Andover and Haverhill line, of a location on the old railroad, and the grant of Andover of a location on Elm street has made the connection, for a through line, somewhat of a problem to the promoters. While it is possible to run across and thus make a connection, it was felt by the builders of the road that it would be much better to come upon the old railroad in Andover. Hence the grant that the selectmen have made from the North Andover line, to Carmel woods. From that point it is expected that an easy run may be made across lots to Elm street.

From a scheme in which nobody had any interest, this proposed road is fast becoming a necessity to many Andover citizens. The opinion is getting to be general that one good road deserves another.

Editorial Cinders.

Our correspondent asks some pertinent questions in his communication this week headed "Trolley Questions." According to street railway men several of them are not easy of solution for reasons which we have already referred to. To make connections with the B. & M. trains at Reading will probably be found as puzzling a problem as it always is to make electric running on even time connect with trains running on uneven time. The great number of trains between Reading and Boston will however help to make many of the cars to Andover very useful for Andover citizens.

It seems to be all electric cars this week. Since writing the above, which we had expected to close the matter until another issue, a petition has been received asking for an extension to Elm square for the Reading road. Two routes are petitioned for, probably with the desire to be sure of one. The public should interest itself in this matter, for it means not only important street railway developments, but much convenience and comfort for many citizens. We are obliged to withhold any extended comment upon the petition until another issue.

Vacation School Dramatics.

"No Cure No Pay" was the title of a cute little farce given by some of the young misses, members of the dramatic class, who have been attending the Vacation school. Puncture hall was utilized for the presentation of the play last Friday evening, and there was gathered a sizable audience to see what the young ladies had been able to learn of dramatics in the short space of six weeks. That their instruction fell on fruitful soil was made evident by the really good acting they displayed. It would have been creditable to a great many older amateur actors.

As "Aunt Maria Midget, a little hard of hearing," little Miss Helen E. Jenkins was delicious and well deserved the first prize which was awarded to her. She was perfectly at home on the stage and in her part, all of her motions being perfectly natural and easy. The winner of the second prize was Miss Adelaide L. Klein and she also was very much at her ease. By accident she overturned a vase while moving a chair, but did not become embarrassed as would many an older actor, continuing with her part as though it was a feature of the program. To distinguish between the balance of the young actresses would be very difficult. As it was, the committee of award must have found it hard work to pick out the ones most deserving the prizes.

Previous to the farce, Miss Mabel Carter sang two solos and Mr. Dean of the Seminary, played a piano solo.

The cast of characters for the farce "No Cure No Pay" was as follows: Mrs. Langrish, a lady who has lately acquired wealth, Mary Caroline Findley Alice, her daughter, Anne Mabel Coleman Friends of Alice, Florence McCreadie Lucy Allen, Adelaide Lombard Klein Susan Dean, Edith Belle Morse Bridget, the queen of the kitchen, Belle Bowman

Weddings.

STEARNS-DEANE.

Miss Kate Belle Deane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Deane, was married at Christ Episcopal church, Springfield, at noon, Wednesday, to Alfred Edward Stearns, of Andover.

The interior of the edifice was decorated with birches, asparagus and hydrangeas. Rev. John Cotton Brooks performed the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father. Guilmant's wedding march was played as the wedding party entered the church. The best man was James C. Sawyer of Andover, and the ushers were Messrs. Daltzell of Pittsburg, C. A. Crawford of Chicago, Edward Sawyer of New York, Herman Cheney of Southbridge, Robert Stewart Smith of Philadelphia and Franklin Mills of Amherst.

On their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Stearns will live in Andover, where Mr. Stearns is registrar of Phillips academy and a member of the faculty.

MORSE-NICKLESS.

The wedding of Charles Morse, the popular driver for Tuttle's Express, and Miss Carmilla Alesta Nickless, took place last Saturday at the home of the bride in Carlisle, near Lowell. The affair was a quiet one, only relatives being present.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Ellis of Chelmsford. Mr. and Mrs. Morse have the best wishes of many friends in Andover. They will reside on Essex street.

Mrs. Morse is well known in Andover where she resided for some little time previous to her marriage.

Additional Franchise to Haverhill and Andover Electric Road.

To complete the grant of location for tracks and other necessary appliances to the Haverhill and Andover electric railroad whereby it can connect with the route as specified in the franchise given to this company by the selectmen of North Andover, the Andover town fathers signed an additional franchise on Wednesday evening.

It is stated therein that the Haverhill and Andover street railway company may lay rails, erect poles and wires on High street, commonly known as the "old railroad," from the North Andover line to Carmel Woods.

A director of this company told the Townsman correspondent last evening that work on the new road would be begun just as soon as possible after it had been decided what route was most practicable to take to come from High street across private lands to Elm street.

Reading Line will Come to the Square.

The Lawrence & Reading road have petitioned for a location of tracks from their terminus on Main street, down Main street to the junction of Elm street; also from the junction of Main and School streets, down School and Central streets to Elm street.

A hearing has been granted on the petition of the L. & R. road for Saturday, Sept. 15, at 4 p.m., in the Town house.

Col. C. F. Woodward, president of the road, states that the riding public is demanding that the cars come to Andover square, and that the company is ready to accommodate them by coming over either one route or the other, just as the townspeople of Andover see fit to have them.

Chase-Chace Reunion.

Following was the program of the Chase-Chace family association reunion at the Unitarian church, Newburyport, yesterday:

H.; organ solo, "Elevation" in Ab, Guilmant, Miss Alice Louise Chase, Medina, N. Y.; poem, George F. Chase, Taunton, Mass.; reading of letters; solo, Miss Elizabeth Carr Adams, Newburyport, Mass.; report of officers and committees; solo, Mrs. Katherine Knight Chase; brief addresses; closing hymn, "America."

FLORISTS-GARDENERS' ANNUAL

On the 8th and 9th of November the annual exhibition of the Florists and Gardeners' Association will be held in the Town Hall, and the committee anticipate a better showing of flowers than last year, although the vegetables may not be quite as good.

It was decided to hold the exhibition on Thursday and Friday this year in order that the plants might be taken home on Saturday. The judges this year will probably be the same as last year, M. A. Patten of Tewksbury, J. K. L. M. Farquhar of Boston, and Walter Angus of North Andover.

Trolley Questions.

To the Editor of the Townsman:

Present patrons and would be patrons of the new line to Reading are asking questions more and more. When will the line be connected with the Lawrence line, so as to allow riding from the Square on to Reading, without change, and without extra fare? If this cannot be done, will the Reading road lay an extra track to the Square? Above all, why is not this just the time for the people to insist that the town authorities secure, as a condition of franchises so freely given, that a track be laid to the station? Could this be in the form of an extension of the Reading line, say by way of School, Central and Essex streets, if another track is impracticable on Main street? Why do the conductors start from Reading for Andover, just as the cars arrive from Boston, without waiting to see whether there are any passengers?

Assignment Made by H. F. Chase

Herbert F. Chase, Andover's well known dealer in bicycles and sporting goods, made an assignment last Saturday to Charles W. Dodson of Boston. His liabilities are said to be in the neighborhood of $3000.

The news of his business difficulties was a surprise to the numerous friends here and elsewhere and all express the hope that his business may be arranged so that he will be able to continue. His store in the Musgrove block is an up-to-date bicycle shop and his stock of sporting goods has always been of such nature as to be in considerable demand.

A meeting of the creditors is being held to-day at Mr. Dodson's office in Boston when the affairs will be straightened out as much as is possible. It is probable that he will be able to continue in business at the old stand.

Heavy Travel Sunday.

Since the electric cars have been an institution in Andover, the travel has never been as heavy, except on one or two special occasions, as it was last Sunday. The new electric road to Reading with its short, cheap and convenient means of reaching the beaches, and the excessive heat of the day, brought out over 5000 persons to travel either one way or the other through the town.

The Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill street railroad reaped not a little benefit from this travel, as many of the persons came from Lawrence and neighboring towns. At one time there were as many as five cars all crowded, run from Lawrence to Andover, and all day both roads ran double headers. Even the two big cars of the L. & R. road could not carry all the passengers waiting to go on some trips and many were obliged to wait a half an hour for their chance to ride.

The employees of the Reading road were obliged to work without a lay off for dinner or supper from eight in the morning until nearly half past eleven at night.

The running time of the L. & R. road is half hourly from the top of the hill in Andover and from the square in Reading beginning in the morning at 6.15 o'clock on week days and 8.15 on Sundays, until 10.45 at night, with a car at 11.15 from both ends, going to the power house in North Reading only.

Although an extra force of police was on duty Sunday to prevent the people from abusing private property on the hill, their presence was hardly necessary. Chief Frye said the crowd was remarkably orderly, and that out of the thousands, not an intoxicated man was noticed.

Old Mystery Solved.

The New York Tri-Weekly Tribune of Monday, Aug. 20, 1900, under a dispatch of the 18th from Manchester, N. H., say: "The Mirror" tonight published what is believed to be a solution of what has been known as the "Parker murder mystery." Jonas L. Parker, tax collector of Manchester, was murdered in 1845, after being enticed from his house, and $7000 was taken from him. His throat had been cut with a razor.

According to Nathaniel P. Ames of Medford, Mass., a resident of this city at the time of the murder, who has seen a letter written by General B. F. Butler, one of Parker's murderers was the United States, executed in 1849 for the murder of a family in Wilmington, Mass. Mr. Ames states that Pierson, who was defended by General Butler, confessed that he also killed the Manchester man, at the instigation of a person who desired Parker put out of the way in revenge for some wrong. The identity of this person was never revealed.

Three Wentworth brothers, hotel proprietors of Saco, Me., were arrested for the Parker murder. Franklin Pierce, afterward president of the United States, was one of those who defended the prisoners, and they were acquitted.

Daniel Pierson will be remembered by a number of the oldest residents of Andover, as he at times lived here on the D. I. C. Hidden place with a family by the name of Chandler. He attended the public schools here. Among those who knew him as a school boy is B. F. Wardwell of Summer street.

Obituary.

REV. EZRA P. GOULD.

Many friends of the Rev. Prof. Ezra P. Gould have been saddened to hear of his death, after an illness of a year and a half, which took place Aug. 22d, at White Lake, N. Y., where he and his family spent the summer. Prof. Gould was born in Boston in 1841 and educated in the schools of that city and at Harvard, where he was graduated among the first of his class in 1861. Shortly after he enlisted in the 24th Mass. regiment, and after a varied and interesting experience, he was transferred as major to the 57th regiment, which he led home from the war. He was mustered out July 30, 1865.

In the autumn of that year he entered Newton Theological Institution and immediately after completing the course, was chosen assistant professor of New Testament Interpretation. In 1870 he became a full professor and served Newton as such for twelve years. From 1884 to 1888 he was pastor of the Berean Baptist church in Burlington, Vt. His next service was from 1889 to 1898 as professor of New Testament interpretation in the Episcopal Divinity School, Philadelphia. The last two years of his life he was assistant minister at St. George's church, New York city.

Beside numerous periodical articles, Prof. Gould published a commentary on the Epistles of Corinthians, and one on the Gospel of Mark, and about a month since, a volume on the Theology of the New Testament.

Prof. Gould will be remembered in Andover by his preaching at Christ church during the pastor's vacation two years ago. He was an accurate scholar, a broad minded theologian, a large hearted Christian, a loyal and devoted friend. He had the gift of arousing the enthusiasm of his students and attaching to himself the thoughtful among his hearers.

Five Hours at Pine Point.

If Maine is the summer home of the country, Pine Point must be the particular summer property of our own town of Andover. The list of saunterers as published in the Townsman during the past few months has contained many Andover names, and apparently others, not chronicled, have gone to the shore of old ocean as it touches the state of Maine at Pine Point.

It was the writer's pleasure to be a guest of a half day last Tuesday, of one of the most ardent lovers of Pine Point, Cashier Kimball of the Andover National Bank, who, with his family, is spending his vacation there. A little settlement of two small hotels and about two score houses, has brought together a most delightful summer colony in the midst of a grove of pines. Andover names are all around one, as he follows the guide who shows off the charms of the place. And the charms are just as the creator left them apparently. Go only two miles away, and the visitor is supposed to be dazzled by the great iron pier, the stuffed elephant, the band concerts, and all the other hurdy-gurdy turmoil of Old Orchard. There is none of that at Pine Point. There is the value of a pine forest all around you; there is the charm of old ocean stretched out in front of you, there is the enjoyment of a neighborhood of congenial people on every hand, and what more could be desired for the making of an ideal rest place.

The five hours of last Tuesday gave time for drinking in but little of all this but the taste leaves a very decided appetite for more.

No Andover face that we met, brought greater pleasure than that of Mr. Downs, which told me its new cheerfulness even better than words could have done, of the great good that the pine trees and salt air are doing for Mrs. Downs.

WEST PARISH.

The Free union picnic of neighboring Granges, including Andover, which took place at Lakeview yesterday, had a goodly attendance from town.

Miss Clara Putnam entertained the members of the West Church choir, about twelve in number, at her home last Monday night. The guests passed a most enjoyable evening with music and other forms of amusement. Refreshments were served.

A regular meeting of the Grange was held last Tuesday evening. The subjects were "The mission of the hen," "The mission of the mosquito." It was the endeavor of the Grangers to tell the most preposterous tale of the respective missions of the hen and the mosquito, and the one telling the most artistic stories were awarded prizes.

H. P. Wright has moved into the house adjoining the one recently occupied by him and formerly occupied by F. H. Messer.

ROOM LACKING.

The problem of what to do with all the school children in this city will again confront the school authorities next Tuesday. Although it was realized months ago that the pupils could not be properly accommodated unless more room was provided, practically nothing in that direction has been done.

German school has been rented, but it has not been fitted up for the use of the scholars who will be forced to occupy it when school opens. It is now too late to put in the required desks, etc., in time. Indications are that there will be hundreds of children who will be temporarily deprived of proper school facilities.

The new high school will not be ready for occupancy until a year from now and of course the new ward five grammar school will not be completed until next year. The problem which the city officials have on their hands is a most serious one.

A better record than usual has been made this season in regard to ordinary repairs. Such work which has been delayed until too late, heretofore, is now nearly completed. Supt. Kingston has done a large amount of work, too. In nearly all the school buildings it has been necessary to make extensive repairs to the boilers. At the Manual training school the boiler had to be reset. At the Tarbox school the large fan which had not been properly fitted, was taken out and refitted.

A large amount of window glass has been set, especially in the high school. The two hundred seats and desks which Supt. Kingston had on hand have been divided among several buildings. No more have been ordered and consequently cannot now be obtained when they will be needed next week.

The blackboards have been renewed in nearly all the schools and other minor repairs made.

STOOD DEATH OFF.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life."

DEATH RECORD.

Edward T. Cook died at Newburyport Sunday of paralysis, aged 64 years. He was a native of that city, but for 20 years was a resident of Lawrence, moving here with his parents in 1849. He was a son of Thomas Cook, who kept a coffin shop on Common street. The deceased, while in Lawrence conducted a photographic saloon on Essex street, and for years was in the employ of Joshua Pillsbury, who kept a furniture store on Essex street. He was an uncle of J. Forrest Burnham of Bradford street, a student of the Harvard Medical school, being a brother of his mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Burnham. He was a Mason, having been a member of a lodge at Fairfield, Me. He was a widower and leaves no children, but four brothers and a sister survive.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Robert Dresser was taken from Lawrence jail to Haverhill on Saturday on his appeal from sentence to the state farm for fifth offense of drunkenness and the sentence was reaffirmed and he was sent to that institution.

While the court was in session Inspector Durgin brought in John A. Page who was recently arrested in this city and whose arrest led to the discovery of a burglary at the residence of Robert W. Briggs, a quantity of silverware being found upon Page. When he was arraigned in the local police court he was sentenced for drunkenness and his term expired Saturday. Inspector Durgin came after Page and took him to Haverhill. He denied the charge of breaking and entering but admitted the larceny of silverware, valued at $45 belonging to Briggs. The evidence showed that the house owned by Briggs had been broken into and that but a portion of the property had been recovered. Judge Merrill held Page for the September grand jury.

He started west some years ago and studied his trade at Milwaukee and Chicago breweries. His many Lawrence friends wish him every success in his new undertaking and regret that his interests take him so far away from home.

KIDNEY TROUBLES OF WOMEN

Miss Frederick's Letters Show How She Suffered on Mrs. Pinkham and Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have a yellow, muddy complexion, feel tired and have bearing down pains. Meneses have not appeared for three months; sometimes am troubled with a white discharge. Also have kidney and bladder trouble.

I have been this way for a long time, and feel so miserable I thought I would write to you and see if you could do me any good."—Miss EDNA FREDERICK, Troy, Ohio, Aug. 6, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound according to directions, and can say I have not felt so well for years as I do at present. Before taking your medicine a more miserable person you never saw. I could not eat or sleep, and did not care to talk with any one. Now I feel so well I cannot be grateful enough to you for what you have done for me."—Miss EDNA FREDERICK, Troy, Ohio, Sept. 10, 1899.

Backache Cured

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to thank you for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. It is the only medicine I have found that helped me. I doctored with one of the best physicians in the city of New York, but received no benefit. I had been ailing for about sixteen years, was so weak and nervous that I could hardly walk; had continued pain in my back and was troubled with leucorrhoea. Meneses were irregular and painful. Words cannot express the benefit I have derived from the use of your medicine. I heartily recommend it to all suffering women."—Miss MARY HARRINGTON, Windsor, Pa.

REUNION AT SALEM.

The committee of Phil H. Sheridan Post 34, G. A. R., is hard at work perfecting plans for the reunion and parade of the Essex County G. A. R. posts, which will take place in this city on Sept. 15. As soon as the arrangements are completed, the committee will make them public.

Present indications point to a big parade, provided of course that the day is fine, for responses show that the posts of the county will come to the city with well filled ranks.

It is with a feeling of pride that the committee of Post 34 find at this late date so many of the citizens of Salem evincing so much interest in the organization, and heartfelt thanks are extended to all who are aiding the post financially or otherwise.

On Sept. 15, scenes and incidents of the dark days of 61-65 will come vividly before those who were old enough to remember them, but to the younger people, the generation that has grown up since it is well to remind them that many of the men they will see marching the streets of the City of Peace, were participants in many a hard fought battle, on land or sea, from Baltimore '61 to Appomattox '65, in a war that cost 400,000 loyal lives, and left behind a million widows, orphans, mothers and sisters to mourn for the loved ones who never returned.

Although a memorial hall or monument does not grace the city, to commemorate the deeds of her soldier and sailor boys from 1776 down to the present trouble in China yet her citizens are still loyal and patriotic, and it is hoped that they will all unite and decorate their places of business and residences and giving the boys a royal welcome, which will linger long as a pleasant memory.

Probably Salem will never have the honor of having a county parade held within its precincts again, for by the time her turn comes around again, the vets, many of them, will have answered the last roll call, and those left behind will be too aged or infirm to care to march to the tap of the drum.

If the weather is pleasant is is confidently expected that upward of 1200 G. A. R. veterans will treat the streets of Salem, to say nothing of the bands and drum corps, for almost every organization is accompanied by music.

The parade will be held in the forenoon at Capt. Joseph M. Parsons will act as chief marshal, having for chief of staff Staff Commander Everett N. Austin of Post 34, G. A. R., while his aids will be representatives of the various posts in line.

Following the parade, the route of which will be published later, the comrades will dine, probably at Cadet hall, after which the remainder of the day will be spent in social intercourse, during which time many a hard march, happy day about the campfire, or thrilling incident of some hard fought battle will be related, turning back the curtain of time, to the days when the boys were young, and gave the best they had for their country.

It is hoped that everyone who has bunting or flags will use them on this day, and give the city a gala appearance. G. A. R. headquarters will be handsomely decorated, and many of the merchants on the street have given notice that they will use bunting and flags to brighten up their business blocks a bit.

"One Hundred Years in the White House," opening the September Ladies' Home Journal, gives some highly interesting glimpses of the social life of the century and of the home life of our Presidents since the time the Adamses moved into the Executive Mansion as its first occupants, in November, 1800. The "Romances of Some Southern Homes" in the same issue, pictures the most notable historic mansions of the South, and recalls the incidents which made them famous—their brave men and beautiful women. Some new anecdotes attract further interest to the beloved Phillips Brooks, as a man and as a preacher. They are characteristic, and exceedingly well told. Anticipating the rather radical change that fashion has decreed in women's attire, ten special articles are devoted to the fall and winter modes. The pictorial features of the September Journal include a superb drawing of "Lotteries at the Railroad Station," as A. B. Frost sees them; "The Wonders of California Gardens," and the beauties of Yellowstone Park. There are numerous practical articles and much else that is helpful in the departments. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.
